There is nothing quite like eating fresh food right out of your garden; it is so satisfying on many different levels. One of the joys of cooking at home is the use of fresh herbs to enhance the cooking process, garnish prepared foods and/or create sauces and dips for your favorite veggies. There are so many options when it comes to growing herbs at home and this class will introduce the many different ways one can grow them inside and outside. There will also be some tips on harvesting to keep the plants growing well and to maximize the quality of the freshly harvested herbs.
